GLOSSARY

#43 HELL'S TOURIST HIGHLIGHTS

Across the first to eighth circles, there are various locations that resemble "hell", and visitors such as high-ranking mages or people who became monsters enjoy sightseeing tours. Major landmarks include the Hell of Bloody Pools, the source of bloody water that turns those touching it feverish, and the Needle Mountains for people confident in their toughness. Places to avoid include the Hell of Snake Pools where huge numbers of serpent-type magic beasts reside, the Library of Malice which is a cemetery for high-level mages, the recently-discovered candy house within the forest, and so on. These locations are managed by the Malebranche, so visitors on good terms with them can get more information.

#44 MALEBRANCHE

Twelve monsters under the direct control of the True Magic King. Though originally high-ranking mages, their forms became grotesque upon transformation into monsters, and they became able to command stronger magic beasts. Because they have already abandoned human bodies, their interest beyond research have faded. They have declared their intent to lead armies of magic beasts and attack humans so that the True Demon King will someday awaken and destroy the entire world. Among them are Paladins who have become monsters, so ordinary mages cannot oppose them.
